

Short Bio:

Amy Collins is an agent with the Talcott Notch Literary Services agency focusing on non-fiction and international rights. She is a USA TODAY and WALL STREET JOURNAL bestselling author and is currently working with authors with expertise in business, history, personal development, and prescriptive how-to. She is a columnist for and a board member of several publishing organizations and a trusted teacher at publishing conferences and classes. She can be reached at amysadvice.com.

Tag:

Amy Collins is an agent with the Talcott Notch Literary Services Agency and a USA TODAY and WALL STREET JOURNAL bestselling author. In addition to her international rights duties for existing Talcott Notch clients, Collins focuses on non-fiction, history, how-to, and business books. She can be reached at amysadvice.com.

Long Bio:

Amy Collins is an agent with the Talcott Notch Literary Services agency. With 30 years in the publishing industry as a book buyer, Sales Director for large non-fiction publisher and the founder and President of New Shelves Books, one of the largest book sales and marketing content providers in the US. She is a USA TODAY and WALL STREET JOURNAL bestselling author and has spent her career working with Barnes & Noble, Target, Costco, Books-A-Million, Wal-Mart, as well as bookstores and libraries. She is a trusted expert, speaker, and recommended publishing consultant for some of the largest book and library retailers and wholesalers in the publishing industry.

She is on the national advisory board for IngramSpark, a member of Mensa, a featured columnist for THEBOOKDESIGNER, Writers Digest, IBPA, and a trusted teacher at conferences world-wide. She has taught and spoken at many of the publishing industry's top festivals and conferences including Publisher's Weekly's BookCon, Oklahoma Writer's Conference, Author U, AAPS, Dublin Writers Conference, BAIPA, PALA, St. Louis Writer's Conference, Writers Digest, Henderson Writers Conference, and many others.

When not in the office, her focus is on the working poor and poverty elimination, and she spends a great deal of time personally and professionally working with and training women from disadvantaged backgrounds. A member of several charitable and political organizations, she donates not only her time, but a portion of her company's profits to grant based charities that work to alleviate the cycle of poverty.

She is a singer in a Celtic blues band on the weekends and is saving for a faster motorcycle.

Amy Collins, Rights Agent
Talcott Notch Literary Services

acollins@talcottnotch.net
585-210-2880

www.amysadvice.com
Twitter: www.twitter.com/askamycollins
Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/AmyACollins>
Skype: AskAmyCollins
LinkedIn: <https://www.linkedin.com/in/amycollins>